PREFACE

INNOVATIVE INDIAN INTERIORS has collected forty-four significant interiors in this volume, created by outstanding Indian Designers and Architects. The selected Projects are representative works of India's foremost contemporary and talented interior designers. Beautiful and professional images of concepts and their detailing showcase these Projects. The innovative designs of apartments, villas and pent-houses make this a collector's book, for all design enthusiasts.

FOREWORD

I am delighted to write this Foreword to the second volume on Indian architecture and interior design, published by the IAG-Interior Architecture Group. Their focus is on the significance of emerging residential architecture in India.

My congratulations to Manoj Sharma and Amandeep Singh (founders of IAG) who have conceived these volumes. They have done yeoman service to the discipline of design, by bringing these beautiful villas, penthouses and apartments to the attention of a larger audience, of not only professionals but also the interested amateur. The book has innovative designs and features unique homes that are adjusted to the particular needs of each family.

My congratulations also to the many designers and architects whose projects are featured in this handsome volume. The spaces are beautifully conceived and are contextual in nature. They are sophisticated and refined, although stylistically, each of the homes in this selection, follows its own design trajectory. Many reveal a dialogue with their surroundings. They all stimulate our senses and broaden our perspectives.

Many of these spaces also proudly display a huge confidence in our own Indian culture. This "rootedness" speaks of an increasing assurance in our own design sensibilities, within an increasingly global frame-work.

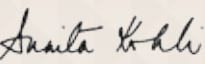

Indian architecture and design seems to have arrived on the world stage. There is an unapologetic celebration of colour and form that is integral to our own sensibilities and is confident of our own worth. This book bears testimony to all this and more.

As one has been in the profession of design for almost half a century, one has witnessed a sea-change in this discipline – from mainly looking westward, owing to our colonial history – to huge advances in the availability of materials, finishes and innovative technologies from all over the world. These are quickly filtering into use in the contemporary Indian home. The book offers a glimpse of what the house of the future will be like...many experts have opined that they "foresee a scenario in which the traditional distribution of spaces will be replaced by integrated spaces and functional solutions that redefine the concept of a home and satisfy the diverging needs of all the members of a family".

Architects and designers work along with the client of today who is often well-educated, sentient and well-traveled. The synergy is exciting and challenging! Family residences, as designed today, represent a paradigm in the evolution of architecture in India. Architects have been able to freely experiment and have, therefore, used it as a tool to propose different lifestyles.

Within the context of our ancient civilization, contemporary architecture and design in India is young. But, it is now establishing a stronger and stronger identity of its own, within a global context.

This book is an invitation to dwell and linger in these lovely interior and exterior spaces. Enjoy!

OVERVIEW

The interior of a sprawling duplex penthouse, spread over the 9th and 10th floor of a building, endowed with generous outdoor space is to be designed. The terraces enjoy stunning and expansive views of city and the sky. Upon entry into the massive volume of the foyer, on the right, beyond the living room, are two guest bedrooms accompanied by balcony, dresser and bath. The other side of the foyer comprises indoor and outdoor dining areas as well as the kitchen accompanied by its support service space. The rolling marble flooring, customized furniture and tailored upholstery define the spatial experience of the house, that is greatly enhanced by the flood of natural light.

An unusually large double-height foyer, in the heart of the penthouse, welcomes the guest. A tall glazed wall lets in views of the terrace garden and the skyline beyond. The 180° panoramic view of the East afforded by this king size terrace is especially glorious in the early mornings.

Light beige Italian marble flooring and travertine finished backdrop wall of the living area imparts richness to the space, but subtly. A custom designed swing occupies its centre. The adjoining balcony allows in cool breeze to relieve the trapped heat of the harsh summers typical of this region.

An eight-seat dining table, though placed centrally, sits quietly in the large room, under a chandelier.

The subtle herringbone pattern on the bison panel as well as the blasting in the tiles of outdoor give identity to this terrace, distinct from the other outdoor areas of the penthouse. While light fixtures, randomly arranged on the bison panel transform its mood by the night, at all times and in all seasons, the outdoor dining enlarges the available space and offers opportunity for relaxation.

The kitchen is planned to be as open and uncluttered as possible. Efficient ventilation is provided in consideration of the Indian style of cooking. The modular kitchen is equipped with the latest of in-built appliances including a silent chimney, microwave oven, fridge and soft closing drawers.

An extensive staircase rises from the foyer to the first floor corridor that features a collage of family photos. On this floor is also placed an airy and open TV lounge.

The master bedroom is designed simply, leaving plenty of open ground, to bring the focus of the best of all luxuries- the ample natural light and air! The en-suite bathroom on the other hand, is heavily clad in stone and embellished with various elements and details.

The large balcony adjoining the masterbedroom offers the comfort of earthy elements such as the stone floor, planters and a traditionally designed gazebo.

The children's bedroom has a separate sunlit study area, where white furniture allows the colour of books and stationery to shine through. The adjoining balcony features a m.s pergola with wooden patta, an element that is used frequently by the designers in the terraces of this penthouse.

The home theatre is one of the few spaces of the house that is understandably closed to natural light. Instead warm wood flooring, dark ceiling and vibrantly coloured furnishing create a distinct ambience, appropriate to its function.

DHAVAL SHELLUGAR - FARAH AHMED
FADD STUDIO

FADD Studio was founded in 2012 in Bangalore by Farah Ahmed, who studied at Istitutio Marangoni in Milan and Dhaval Shellugar who studied at Rachana Sasand's Academy of Architecture in Bombay. While FADD is an acronym for Farah and Dhaval Design, it is also a play on the word 'fad'. The firm believes that "having a singular style defies the purpose of design, which is to push beyond what we know, achieve something novel and unique in every project, and be constantly propelled out of our comfort zone into a world where we not only embrace new concepts and techniques but also create fads of our own". Thus with a thirsting desire to be original, the firm aspires not to fall in the pitfall of stamping a 'signature style', but to impart to each space a design identity that is exclusive to the project and the client. FADD Studio's projects range from residences to offices and retail spaces to hospitality. Currently, the studio is designing a clubhouse of an exclusive gated community; luxury villas in the outskirts of Bangalore and a holiday home in the heart of Bangalore.

ARQMOV WORKSHOP

Arqmov Workshop is a dynamic, ambitious practice with 20 years' experience in various kinds of developments, including housing complexes, luxury apartments, commercial buildings, office spaces, leisure venues and hotels in Mexico, the US, India, and other countries. The focus areas of the practice are service, sustainability, high living standards, ergonomics, creativity and originality. The practice believes that, 'Designing involves talking about what is and what is expected, summarizing the values and needs of the architectural object, looking for a positive impact on the daily lives of those who inhabit the spaces, not only to create aesthetic and functional "products", these are intrinsic values are also part of the process and the search goes beyond resolving a problem, to improve the life and the environment of the daily user and spectator in the urban environment.

PLANET DESIGN TEAM
PLANET DESIGN

As the name suggests, Planet Design, is a firm that believes in providing sustainable design solutions to architectural and design problems. Taking inspiration from the very idea of life and creation, the firm strives to provide quality architecture to its clients. With services including interior design, architecture and project management, Planet Design employs a large team of talented individuals to carry out the ideas of the architects and designers. Smooth completion of projects is of paramount importance to them and so is the coordination of the different functions the firm encompasses.

SWAPNIL - ALEX - ANIL - ADINATH
O7 ARCHITECTS & PLANNERS

O7 Architects & planners is led by an efficient design team of four architects. The firm seeks to understand the clients and participate in the creation of their 'dream' project, and offering a personalized, rather than borrowed, design solution. Founded in early 2004, the firm has completed architectural services for several apartment buildings in Navi Mumbai and interior projects. Presently they are engaged in a wide range of architectural as well as interior projects. Using contemporary vocabulary, their work incorporates gestures that are defined and modulated by existing context. These site-specific conditions are then inscribed into the larger design gestures, ultimately merging into a seamless whole.
